About the course

The 2017 Female Athlete Conference is a global event designed for female athletes, coaches, trainers, and anyone involved in the evaluation and management of female athletes.

In the last 40 years, the number of girls competing in high school sports increased from 295,000 to nearly 3.2 million with more women playing collegiate sports than ever before.

As girls and young women become more empowered through sports, it is important to advance research on how sex and gender differences affect their performance and overall sports experience.

With research advancement in mind, the Female Athlete Conference, the only conference of its kind, centers on the specific health issues that make female athletes unique.

Experts in sports medicine, sports psychology, sports science, nutrition, and sports culture will present strategies to prevent and treat clinical issues and injuries that can limit a female athlete’s performance.

Topics include, but are not limited to:
› Interrelationship of nutrition, menstrual cycles and bone health
› Sexualization and sexual assault of female athletes
› Transgender athlete sensitivity and inclusion
› Concussion and ACL injury prevention and treatment
› Adolescent sports health
› Metabolic assessment for athletic performance

Through information sharing and networking opportunities, the 2017 Female Athlete Conference intends to improve female athletes' training, confidence and motivation to advance their success on and off the field.

Target audience
› Physicians
› Physician assistants
› Nurses
› Nurse practitioners
› Sports medicine specialists
› Physical therapists
› Athletic trainers
› Orthopedists
› Psychologists
› Coaches
› Female athletes and their families
› Others involved with the evaluation and management of female athletes
